Non-GAAP Financial Measures

This presentation contains references to “core revenue growth,” “free cash flow,” "free cash flow conversion," “adjusted free cash flow,” “adjusted free cash flow conversion,” “adjusted operating profit,” “adjusted operating profit margin,” “adjusted core operating margin expansion,” “adjusted net earnings,” “adjusted diluted net earnings per share,” “adjusted EBITDA,” and “net leverage ratio” financial measures which are, in each case, not presented in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (“GAAP”).

- Core revenue growth refers to the change of total sales calculated according to GAAP but excluding (1) sales from acquired and divested businesses; (2) the impact of currency translation; and (3) certain other items. References to sales attributable to acquisitions or acquired businesses refers to GAAP sales from acquired businesses recorded prior to the first anniversary of the acquisition less the amount of sales attributable to certain divested businesses or product lines not considered discontinued operations. The portion of sales attributable to the impact of currency translation is calculated as the difference between (a) the period-to-period change in sales (excluding sales from acquired businesses) and (b) the period-to-period change in sales, including foreign operations (excluding sales from acquired businesses) after applying the current period foreign exchange rates to the prior year period. The portion of sales attributable to other items is calculated as the impact of those items which are not directly correlated to sales from existing businesses which do not have an impact on the current or comparable period.
- Free cash flow refers to cash flow from operations calculated according to GAAP but excluding capital expenditures. Free cash flow conversion refers to free cash flow divided by net earnings calculated according to GAAP.
  - Adjusted free cash flow refers to free cash flow adjusted for pro-forma interest expense on debt, net of interest income, and standalone and other one-time public company costs. Adjusted free cash flow conversion refers to adjusted free cash flow divided by adjusted net earnings.
- Adjusted operating profit refers to operating profit calculated in accordance with GAAP, but excluding amortization of acquisition-related intangible assets, restructuring costs and other termination costs and severance benefits ("restructuring costs"), transaction- and deal-related costs, amortization of acquisition-related inventory fair value step-up, other charges which represent charges incurred that are not part of our core operating results ("other charges") and asset impairments and is adjusted for standalone and other one-time public company costs. Adjusted operating profit margin refers to adjusted operating profit divided by GAAP sales. Adjusted core operating margin expansion refers to the change in adjusted operating profit margin but excluding (1) the impact on operating profit from acquired and divested businesses and (2) the impact of currency translation. References to the impact of acquisitions and divestitures refer to operating profit from acquired businesses recorded prior to the first anniversary of the acquisition less the amount of operating profit attributable to certain divested businesses or product lines not considered discontinued operations. The portion of operating profit attributable to the impact of currency translation is calculated as the difference between (a) the period-to-period change in operating profit (excluding operating profit from acquired businesses) and (b) the period-to-period change in operating profit, including foreign operations (excluding operating profit from acquired businesses) after applying the current period foreign exchange rates to the prior year period.
- Adjusted net earnings refers to net earnings calculated in accordance with GAAP, but excluding amortization of acquisition-related intangible assets, restructuring costs, transaction- and deal-related costs, amortization of acquisition-related inventory fair value step-up, gains and losses on sales and settlements of property and investments, asset impairments, earnings attributable to noncontrolling interests, other charges and non-cash write-off of deferred financing costs and is adjusted for pro-forma interest expense on debt, net of interest income, standalone and other one-time public company costs, and certain other tax adjustments and applying the Company's overall estimated effective tax rate to the pretax amount of the adjustment, unless the nature of the adjustment and/or the tax jurisdiction in which the adjustment has been recorded requires application of a specific tax rate or tax treatment, in which case the tax effect of such adjustment is estimated by applying such specific tax rate or tax treatment. Adjusted diluted net earnings per share refers to adjusted net earnings divided by the weighted average diluted shares outstanding.
- EBITDA refers to net earnings calculated in accordance with GAAP, excluding, interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization of acquisition-related intangible assets.
  - Adjusted EBITDA refers to EBITDA excluding restructuring costs, asset impairments, transaction- and deal-related costs, amortization of acquisition-related inventory fair value step-up, gains and losses on sales and settlements of property and investments, one-time costs related to separation, earnings attributable to non controlling interest, other charges and non-cash write-off of deferred financing costs.

The Company has not reconciled the forward-looking statements regarding core revenue growth, adjusted core operating margin expansion and adjusted free cash flow conversion because both the corresponding GAAP measures and the reconciliation thereto would require the Company to make estimates or assumptions about unknown currency impact, unidentified acquisitions and similar adjustments during the relevant period that could not be determined without unreasonable effort. The historical non-GAAP financial measures should not be considered in isolation or as a substitute for the GAAP financial measures but should instead be read in conjunction with the corresponding GAAP financial measures. Further information with respect to and reconciliations of such non-GAAP financial measures to the nearest GAAP financial measure can be found attached to this presentation.

We report our financial results in accordance with GAAP. However, we present certain non-GAAP measures, as described above, which are not recognized financial measures under GAAP, because we believe they assist investors and analysts in comparing our operating performance across reporting periods on a consistent basis by excluding items that we do not believe are indicative of our core operating performance. Management believes these measure are helpful in highlighting trends in our operating results, while other measures can differ significantly depending on long-term strategic decisions regarding capital structure and allocation, the tax jurisdictions in which companies operate and capital investments and acquisitions.
