

INSIDER TRADING & REPORTING POLICY

Adopted by the Board of Directors on August 18, 2023

SUMMARY

Pulsar Helium Inc. and its subsidiaries (collectively the “Company”) are committed to complying with all applicable laws and regulations. The Insider Trading and Reporting Policy (“Policy”) highlights the reporting obligations and trading restrictions imposed on insiders by relevant securities legislation. It discusses the implementation of blackout periods, trading prohibitions, as well as insider reporting requirements as determined by securities legislation. All employees and others with access to confidential information need to understand their legal obligations in respect of such information as set out in this policy.

PURPOSE OF THE POLICY

The purpose of this Policy is to summarize the insider trading restrictions to which all directors, officers, employees, and technical advisory group members of the Company (“Personnel”), and those consultants or contractors (“Third Parties”) designated by the Chief Executive Officer or Chief Financial Officer are subject under applicable securities legislation, and to set forth a policy, governing investments in securities of the Company which is consistent with the legislation.

This Policy is not intended to discourage investment in the Company's securities. Rather, it is intended to highlight the obligations and the restrictions imposed on insiders by relevant securities legislation.

SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

Securities legislation prohibits:

- Purchasing or selling the Company's shares with the knowledge of a material fact, material information or a material change concerning the Company that has not been generally disclosed.
- Unless explicitly permitted and authorized by law, informing (or "tipping"), other than when necessary, in the course of business, another person or corporation of a material fact, material information or material change concerning the Company before the material fact or material change has been generally disclosed.

These prohibitions apply even after you have terminated your relationship with the Company.

A material change to the business or affairs of the Company or a material fact is one which would reasonably be expected to have an effect on the market price or value of any securities of a public issuer. A material change is specifically defined to include any decision by a director of the Company to implement a material change, as well as any decision made to implement such a change by senior management, if approval by the Company's Board of Directors is probable. Under Canada's securities legislation, material information also includes any matters to which there is substantial likelihood that a reasonable investor would attach importance in making investment decisions.

While the penalties for a breach of this prohibition vary among jurisdictions under Canadian law, a breach may render you personally liable to prosecution and, upon conviction, to a fine not exceeding one million dollars or two years in jail, or both. Further, you may be subject to civil actions at the instance of security holders, the companies whose securities were traded, and securities regulators. Penalties under Canadian law can be even more severe and can include civil and criminal penalties for the Company and its supervisory personnel if they fail to take appropriate steps to prevent insider trading.

This Policy applies to all Personnel and Third Parties, and you are responsible for ensuring compliance with this policy by any member of your family that lives with you or whose transactions in securities are subject to your influence or control, your spouse and any other person living with you. Remember, anyone scrutinizing your transactions will be doing so after the fact, with the benefit of hindsight. As a practical matter, before engaging in any transactions you should carefully consider how enforcement authorities and others might view the transaction in hindsight.

TRADING PROHIBITIONS

In light of the foregoing, all Personnel and Third Parties will be subject to the following prohibitions relating to investments in the Company's securities and securities of other public issuers:

- If one has knowledge of a material fact, material information or a material change related to the affairs of the Company or any public issuer involved in a transaction with the Company which is not generally known, no purchase or sale may be made until the end of the second trading day after which the information has been generally disclosed to the public.
- Knowledge of a material fact, information or change must not be conveyed to any other person for the purpose of assisting that person to buy or sell securities of a public issuer. In addition, such information must be conveyed only by appropriate persons in compliance with the Disclosure and Confidentiality Policy.
- The practice of selling "short" securities of the Company at any time is not permitted.
- Hedging transactions involving the Company's securities are not permitted except with the prior approval of the Company's Board of Directors.
- Trading is prohibited in the event that the Company has imposed a blackout period until the information has been generally disclosed to the public and the blackout period has expired.

For purposes of this Policy, public issuer includes any issuer, whether a corporation or otherwise, whose securities are traded in a public market, whether on a stock exchange or "over the counter".

The above prohibitions and the insider reporting obligations provided below applies equally to the trading or exercising of options to acquire shares or other securities of the public issuer.

If you are unsure whether you may trade in a given circumstance, you should contact the Disclosure Committee to determine if the particular information is or is not material. In exceptional circumstances, such as the imminent expiry of stock options, the Disclosure Committee may permit a broader class of persons to exercise options while in possession of material non-public information, including during a blackout period, provided that the securities acquired upon exercise of the options are not traded.

BLACKOUTS

From time to time, management of the Company may impose blackouts prohibiting any person subject to the blackout from trading in the Company's securities. Blackouts will generally be imposed by management in connection with events or developments that are, or that may be, considered material and non-public. Blackout notices may be selective, applying only to certain personnel aware of the information, or they may be imposed on a corporation-wide basis. To limit the distribution of material non-public information, the blackout notice will not generally identify the material non-public information that led to the blackout. When such a blackout is imposed, all persons subject to the blackout are prohibited from trading the Company's securities until notified by management that the blackout has expired. In general, this will be at the end of the second trading day following the public disclosure of the information or when such information ceases to be material.

If a person holds incentive stock options that expire during a blackout period, the option will be subject to the Blackout Expiration Term as defined in the Company's Stock Option Plan as follows: "If the Expiry Date for an Option occurs during the Black-Out period, then, notwithstanding any other provision of the Plan, the Option shall be extended no more than ten Business Days after the date the Black-Out is lifted by the Corporation, unless the delayed expiration would result in tax penalties or the Participant or the Corporation is subject to a cease trade order in respect of the Corporation's securities.."

INSIDER REPORTING OBLIGATIONS

A person or corporation who becomes an insider of the Company must file an insider report within 10 days of the date of becoming an insider. In addition, an insider whose direct or indirect beneficial ownership of or control or direction over securities of the Company changes, must file an insider report of the change within 5 days of the date of the change.

Generally, Canadian securities legislation defines insiders as:

- Every director or officer of a public issuer.
- Every director or senior officer of an entity that is itself an insider or a subsidiary of an issuer.
- Any person that has:
 - Beneficial ownership of, or control or direction over, directly or indirectly, an issuer.
 - A combination of beneficial ownership of, and control or direction over, directly or indirectly, an issuer.
 - Securities of an issuer carrying more than 10% of the voting rights attached to all the issuer's outstanding voting securities, excluding, for the purpose of the calculation of the percentage held, any securities held by the person as underwriter in the course of a distribution.
- An issuer that has purchased, redeemed or otherwise acquired a security of its own issue, for so long as it continues to hold that security.
- A person designated as an insider in an order made under section 3.2 of the British Columbia Securities Act.
- A person that is in a prescribed class of persons.

Generally, an officer is:

- Chair of the Board of Directors, a Director, Chief Executive Officer, Chief Financial Officer, any Executive Vice President or Corporate Secretary.
- An individual who is designated as an officer under a bylaw or similar authority of the registrant or issuer.
- An individual who performs functions similar to those normally performed by an individual referred to above.

A copy of the insider report is required to be filed electronically on the System for Electronic Disclosure by Insiders (SEDI) at www.SEDI.ca.

In certain circumstances, directors and executive officers of the Company may also be subject to certain U.S. securities laws reporting requirements with respect to trades in securities of the Company.

It is each insider's personal responsibility to ensure that all requisite insider trading and other reports are filed with the appropriate securities commissions within the required time limits.
