

Prudential supports military spouses with a new partnership

Financial education, tools and advice will be available to a new digital community dedicated to the anchors of military families.

Just ahead of Veterans Day, Prudential Financial has partnered with a new digital community to bring financial education and resources to military spouses.

Prudential Stages, the company's digital life stage planning platform, will offer financial tools and guidance to members of Twelve Million Plus, a new app from the company Instant Teams Marketplace, which provides a host of curated and local resources for the more than 12 million spouses of active and retired U.S. military members.

"People in the military community can face unique financial challenges, and Prudential is here to support and empower them, so they feel confident about their futures," says Kathryn Delcavo, head of Strategic Partnerships for Prudential Stages. "Twelve Million Plus' digital community brings together the anchors of so many military families — the spouse — and Prudential is excited to help provide resources and advice in one place and become a trusted partner to a community we feel very strongly about."

Through the partnership with Prudential, members of the Twelve Million Plus community will have access to a range of resources to improve their financial well-being, including the ability to connect with a virtual advisor and Prudential Stages, the company's digital life stage-based planning platform. Launched in January 2023 with a focus on the retirement stage of life, Prudential Stages helps individuals benchmark their retirement readiness, utilizing projections of their retirement income and spending. Members will also have access to Prudential's financial education through online articles and videos as well as live seminars.

Prudential has a long-standing commitment to the military community, which includes veterans and their families and caregivers. Through its Prudential Pathways programs, the company provides financial wellness seminars to the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, Wounded Warrior Project, the Elizabeth Dole

Foundation, and others. Read more about how Prudential supports the military community.
