NEWS RELEASE

Terex to Acquire Reedrill Business from Metso

11/30/2004

WESTPORT, Conn., Nov 30, 2004 (BUSINESS WIRE) -- Terex Corporation today announced that it has signed an agreement to purchase the Reedrill division of Metso Corporation. Reedrill, headquartered in Sherman, Texas is a leading manufacturer of surface drilling equipment for use in the mining, construction and utility industries, with estimated 2004 revenues of approximately $80 million. This transaction is anticipated to close at the end of the fourth quarter of 2004.

"The acquisition of Reedrill provides a terrific opportunity for us," commented Ronald M. DeFeo, Terex Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. "The acquisition is an excellent fit with Terex's strategy of product diversity and is a natural extension of our mining and utility customer offerings. In fact, synergies between Terex and Reedrill were already materializing, as many of our Terex Utilities dealers have distribution agreements for the Reedrill products and services." Mr. DeFeo continued, "The combination of Reedrill with our Materials Processing & Mining Group will increase our product penetration in the surface mining arena and allow for more effective use of our worldwide sales and service network."

Rick Nichols, President - Terex Materials Processing & Mining, will be responsible for the management and integration of the Reedrill businesses. Mr. Nichols stated, "The Reedrill product quality is excellent and the growth opportunities appear to be great. With Terex's distribution and market breadth, Reedrill should realize meaningful incremental revenue and profit gains."
