Copal Amba Announces Name Change to Moody's Analytics

12/12/2016

LONDON --(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Moody's Corporation (NYSE:MCO) announced today that Copal Amba has been rebranded as the Knowledge Services unit of Moody's Analytics. Copal Amba's full range of market leading research and analytics knowledge services will be offered as part of Moody's Analytics' comprehensive solutions serving the global financial services industry.

Moody's Analytics' Knowledge Services unit is a leading provider of research and analytics services to global financial and corporate sectors. It supports over 150 institutional clients, ranging from global financial institutions and Fortune 100 corporations to boutique investment banks and asset managers.

"Moody's Analytics has a strong global reputation across the financial services industry for the scope and quality of its offerings, and by incorporating our portfolio of knowledge services solutions we aim to better serve our clients while reaching new and evolving markets," said G.V. Mani , CEO for Knowledge Services at Moody's Analytics.

Copal Amba was formed through Moody's acquisitions of Copal Partners in 2011 and Amba Investment Services in 2013. It has approximately 2,600 employees and operates seven service delivery centers worldwide. Revenue from the business will continue to be reported as a part of the Moody's Analytics Professional Services line of business.

Detailed information about Moody's Analytics' knowledge services offerings are available at the new web site www.MAKnowledgeServices.com .
