New Partnership Network streamlines connection to payment and treasury management services

MINNEAPOLIS--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Sep. 21, 2023-- U.S. Bank today unveiled an online marketplace of third-party payment and treasury solutions that are fully integrated with U.S. Bank systems. The U.S. Bank Connected Partnership Network helps corporate treasury teams easily identify and adopt technology connected with the bank, such as treasury management systems and working capital automation tools. The U.S. Bank Connected Partnership Network also enables fintechs and other third parties to develop applications powered by U.S. Bank Payment Services and delivered through the Connected Partnership Network.

This is the latest example of the bank's embedded payments strategy, delivering U.S. Bank capabilities within applications already used by businesses.

"Businesses are increasingly looking for ways to gain efficiency and streamline their processes," said Rich Erario, head of Global Treasury Management at U.S. Bank. "We know from our own research and conversations with clients that they see opportunity for digital transformation in their payment processes – whether receiving money from clients or sending payments to vendors.
