Wheaton Precious Metals Publishes Inaugural Climate Change Report

Vancouver, British Columbia – Wheaton Precious Metals[™] Corp. (“Wheaton” or the “Company”) is pleased to announce the publication of its inaugural 2022 Climate Change Report (the “report”). The report was prepared in alignment with the recommendations of the Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures (“TCFD”) and outlines how Wheaton is addressing climate change risks and opportunities and the resiliency of its portfolio to climate impacts.

“Mining plays a vital role in facilitating the energy transition and, as a provider of capital to the industry, we have a unique opportunity to influence and encourage our partners to operate in a sustainable manner, including setting targets to reduce their greenhouse gas emissions,” said Randy Smallwood, Wheaton’s President and Chief Executive Officer. “In addition, our high-quality portfolio of assets is diversified in terms of jurisdiction and commodity, allowing Wheaton to effectively manage our exposure to climate-related risks. Through our business model, we are well positioned to help fund the supply of critical metals needed for the growing demand for low-carbon technology and infrastructure.”
